

NATION'S DESTINY RESTS WITH G. O. P.

NOMINEES PLEDGED TO SECURE SAFETY INSURE PROTECTION, NATIONAL IDEAL

The people of the United States need have no fears for the future, if, within the next few hours they enter the voting booths with the determination to register a ballot for the candidates who represent those principles and policies that will safeguard the business of the commonwealth, protect the American laborer, preserve the integrity of the nation and establish protection for its citizens in foreign countries to which they are entitled. To insure this accomplishment should be the paramount consideration of every voter. To bring it about, it is necessary to vote right. To vote right, translated into understandable terms, is to pull the Republican lever—"let 'er go straight."

The success of the Republican ticket means the success of the nation. To cast a ballot for the Republican electors means that you will have helped to elect Charles Evans Hughes and Charles Warren Fairbanks by the biggest majority ever recorded for a president and vice-president. The election of Mr. Hughes and Mr. Fairbanks insures the election of the other candidates on the ticket.

With the normally Republican states standing firm for Mr. Hughes and his running mate and with the so-called doubtful states returned to the Republican column, as indicated in figures compiled from reports of the field workers, who have made an actual canvass of the situation, visiting each individual voter and testing his political sentiment, the election of Mr. Hughes and Mr. Fairbanks by a tremendously big majority is assured.

A complete Republican victory is prophesied. This prophesy will be fulfilled. This is a Republican year. The Democrats have conceded the loss of Utah to Wilson and, correspondingly, a revival of enthusiasm for the other candidates on the Republican state ticket. It is safe to predict that Senator George Sutherland's majority will be the largest ever rolled up for him on an election day and that the vote he will get also will be cast for Timothy C. Hoyt, Republican nominee for congress from the first district, and Charles R. Mabey, nominee for congress from the second district. The same vote will be given Nephi L. Morris, Republican nominee for governor.

Election Most Important in Nation's History.

It is generally conceded that the election on November 7 will be the most important in the nation's history. This is due, probably, to the fact that the United States is the only one of the big nations not engaged in the world war. This war has cost millions of human lives, billions in property destruction and, from its prosecution, saddled the old world with an indebtedness which it will be unable to liquidate for generations to come. Most important of all it has engendered in the belligerent powers a disposition to utterly disregard the rights of neutral nations as defined by international law. Such incidents as the Lusitania disaster have drawn the American nation perilously near the danger line.

Except that the loss of American life in this catastrophe aroused the indignation of the American people, it is argued that at no time has the American nation been in danger of an open assault on the part of one of the belligerent powers. Therefore, the possibility of the United States being drawn into the struggle has been remote. It has been remote because it was a physical impossibility unless the nation, itself sought war and manifested that disposition by plunging into the struggle of its own accord. The European nations, at the outset of the struggle, discovered that America could serve them best by remaining at peace, or at least preserving peace within its own domain. The fact that international law so far as the European nations, whether neutral or belligerent, were concerned, was shot full of holes, theoretically and materially, can not be considered an excuse for transgression of American rights such as was found in the Lusitania disaster. American rights in this and many other instances were trampled underfoot because the pilot of the nation's destiny sought to lay down in preference to enforcing respect for our claims to freedom of the high seas. Mr. Hughes, in reply to charges, "what he would have done," asserted that he could have made conditions right before May 15, 1915, for commanding the respect for the rights of the American nation. He stated that at no time would he have allowed them to have been usurped.

New Condition Certain After European War.

When the war closes the American nation will be confronted with new conditions. New markets will be created. The nations now engaged in destruction will turn to profitable pursuits and commerce will be renewed. The prophesy that a trade war will follow the conflict surely will be fulfilled. Renewal of trade will mean a renewal of competition. American labor and American industry must be protected. The Republican party has pledged its candidates for public office to provide that protection. And in so doing establishes safeguard against the destructive effects of a tariff measure, like the Underwood law, which reduced a big surplus to nothing and created a big deficit before the outbreak of the war. Furthermore, by the establishment of a firm foreign policy, it insures the placing of the nation in a position that will enable it to command the respect of its rights at home and abroad. The spirit of the constitution and the Monroe doctrine demands that the United States be restored to its former high position among the ruling powers of the world.

National Issues!—What the Party Stands For.

The national Republican party stands for the principle of the protective tariff, which alone makes possible the steady employment of the American workman and which alone continuously safeguards the markets of the American farmer. It stands firmly for the protection of the American nation from attacks of foreign enemies by the maintenance of an adequate army and navy. It stands solidly for the protection of the lives, the rights, the shipping and other property of American citizens at home and abroad. It stands unalterably for peace, not the peace that results from a failure to command respect from the other nations of the world, but peace that comes by maintaining the honor and dignity and interests of the government and its people; for preparedness, not under the belated compulsion of public opinion, but preparedness in advance of and in preparation for the necessity of it; for protection, not of the temporary character produced by a foreign war, but the permanent prosperity of the protective tariff.

It contrasts its unparalleled record of fifty years of constructive statescraft, both foreign and domestic, during which time it never failed to redeem a promise made the people, with the record of the Democratic party during the last three years and a half, with its long list of broken promises, with its vacillating and humiliating foreign policy, and its inconsistent protection of the industries of certain sections of the country, particularly the south, and the consequent discrimination against the industries of the other sections, particularly the west.

National Candidates Men of Sterling Character.

The Republican party presents as its candidate for president, CHARLES E. HUGHES.

This strong, steadfast, sterling American has behind him the record of having been one of the most successful attorneys that ever appeared in behalf of the people, one of the most popular and progressive governors the great Empire state ever had, one of the most conscientious and forward-looking judges that ever sat upon the supreme court of the United States. This record is the best guaranty that as the nation's chief executive he will keep faith with the people, stand firmly for the principles of the Republican party, advocate remedial legislation only after a full and complete investigation of the facts, and splendidly and consistently maintain America's prestige at home and abroad.

As its candidate for United States senator, the Republican party presents GEORGE SUTHERLAND, who for the last twelve years has so successfully represented his native states in the senate of the United States; who has, during that period, unceasingly labored to secure that legislation which best meets the needs of his state and the nation; who has become known as one of the best friends of the laboring man in the entire country; who has well earned the title of "the ablest constitutional lawyer in the senate," and as a result has been unanimously chosen as president of the American Bar association.

As its candidate for congressman, the Republican party presents Timothy C. HOYT, of Weber county, whose unequalled acquaintance with Utah's conditions and necessities, gained as a result of many years' employment in the national forestry service, eminently fits him to secure for his native state that legislation by the congress and that consideration by the national government which will insure her future development.

State Issues and Candidates.

The Republican party in the state of Utah stands for: State-wide and nation-wide prohibition by legislative enactment. Woman suffrage by amendment of the federal constitution. A public utilities commission, which shall regulate all public service corporations.

A workingmen's compensation law. An eight-hour day and a six-day week ("one day's rest in seven").

Anti-free-pass legislation. The exemption from taxation of the modest home.

The completion of the comprehensive system of state highways, already begun under the present Republican administration.

The maintenance of the high standard of our public school system, and other educational institutions.

It presents as its candidates for governor, NEPHI L. MORRIS, whose record upon all these issues is unimpeached and unimpaired.

It presents a senatorial and legislative ticket, the personnel of which insures the enactment of the party's platform into law.

The legislative ticket is made up of the following: For state senator, George Halverson; for representatives, Mrs. Lillibell Frey Falck, George A. Fuller, Joseph Skeen and Herbert D. Brown.

In addition to Mr. Morris, the nominee for governor, the state ticket is made up of the following, all of whom are men of high standing and who possess the qualifications necessary for the service required of them in the proper conduct of the offices for which they stand as the party's choice: Supreme judge, D. N. Straup; secretary of state, Lincoln G. Kelly; attorney general, Harold P. Fabian; treasurer, D. H. Madsen; auditor, Joseph Jensen.

Judiciary Composed of Men of Experience.

The Republican party of Weber county and the Second district presents as its candidates for district judges and district attorney men who have rendered the people faithful service in the past, men who have been neither biased nor partisan, but who have been courageous and impartial in the performance of their duties. Their records guarantee the same character of service in the future, together with increased efficiency resulting from their past experience.

The judicial ticket is composed of Judge J. A. Howell, Judge Nathan J. Harris and District Attorney John C. Davis.

County Issues and County Nominees.

The Republican county administration has been a worthy steward of the county's affairs.

It has reduced the county's bonded indebtedness from $120,000 to $44,000.

It spent over $80,000 on the county roads last year.

It has reduced the tax levy for general county purposes $35,000 this year.

It has cared for the indigent poor and has constructed a modern isolation hospital out of the revenue for the current year.

It presents candidates for the respective county offices, whose well-known integrity, acknowledged character, and business success presages an honest, economical, businesslike administration of county affairs in the future. Some of them are men who have already held office and will bring to the incoming administration the benefit of their experience, while others have not yet held public office, and will bring to it the benefit of new ideas.

The Republican party's candidates for sheriff and county attorney are pledged to the enforcement of the law, and particularly the law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors, and the record of their lives here amongst us guarantees that they will keep their pledges.

Nearly all of the nominees for county office have seen public service. The fact insures that they possess the qualifications for future public service. Their re-election will be recognition of the confidence placed in them by the party they represent. It will mean also that the public is satisfied with the results of their administrations and believes, furthermore, that a vote for them will be a vote for economy, which could not be expected from candidates about whom some doubt exists as to their qualifications for the positions they aspire to.

The county ticket is made up of the following: For county clerk and auditor, Harry Hales; for county treasurer, Joseph E. Storey; for recorder, Archie B. Petterson; for surveyor, Ralph Corlew; for assessor, James L. Robson; for county commissioner, four-year term, John Farr; for commissioner, two-year term, Arthur G. Berrett; for county attorney, Joseph E. Evans; for sheriff, Wilford W. Rawson; for constable Ogden city precinct, Elias S. King.—Advertisement.

HENRY COULAM DIES

AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Salt Lake, Nov. 6.—Henry Coulam, a native of Louth, Lincolnshire, England, died at his residence, 64 South Eighth East street, yesterday. He was 74 years of age.

In his early life Mr. Coulam saw much adventure. He crossed the plains by ox team with the Orson Spencer company in 1849 when a boy of 7 years of age. He served in the Black Hawk Indian war under Major Andrew Burt and had the rank of captain. He experienced all the trials and vicissitudes incidental to pioneer life. He was known as one of the minute men. He also served as one of the first volunteer firemen.

Mr. Coulam is survived by a widow, Sarah Bean Coulam, daughter of the late Joseph and Sarah Bean, and four children, Henry Coulam, Jr., chief of the tariff bureau of the Oregon Short Line railroad; William E. Coulam, secretary of the Halloran-Judge Loan & Trust company; George F. Coulam, manager of the Coulam Grocery company, and Mrs. Willard B. Richards, Jr., all of this city. He is also survived by a sister, Mrs. Daniel Heiner of Morgan, Utah, and nine grandchildren.

Mr. Coulam had been ill for several months. Death was due to general debility. Funeral arrangements have not as yet been completed.

Theatres

AT THE ALHAMBRA.

The Hallett-Stanhope Players successfully accomplished a dramatic somersault last night, when they presented "Courtied Into Court" a royalty comedy originally produced by May Irwin on Broadway. The entertainment was in broad contrast to the heavy dramas and melodramas that the company had previously played to Alhambra audiences and the change, for the time being, was appreciated.

A stage divorce, Dottie Dimple, in the evolution of the plot, is courted, won and wedded by Worthington Best, Jr. She is also courted by Judge Jeremiah Geoghegan, four times a widower. Another love affair is carried on by Mlle. Nicodi, an eccentric German dancer, and Vladimir Vladistoff, a Russian duke. In this affair, Judge Geoghegan also takes a hand. The wedding of young Best to the actress is not approved by his mother, a hoydenish creature, and when Dottie and Mrs. Best, Sr., quarrel, the son upholds the mother. This leads the newly wedded couple into court for divorce proceedings, before Judge

A few days afterward I went to the Mexican border to visit the Utah troops, and only returned a few days ago. Other than those two times there has been no invitation from the Republican leaders to speak during the campaign.

Some of my friends have been indignant with me under the impression that I was lying down on the party, and I would be glad to have them know the true situation.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Geoghegan. The proceedings fall of their purpose, to the temporary discomfiture of the judge, who has a verdict in favor of the wife already at hand, in the hope of being her next husband, when the principals agree to agree once more.

The comedy is in three acts and has some extremely funny lines and situations, the latter being improved upon by the interpolation of songs by members of the company. It also gave opportunity for the use of several Ogden girls, as members of Dottie's chorus. Ethel Howe, in the role created by May Irwin, that of Mrs. Worthington Best Sr., was a valuable replica of a "Keystone" mother-in-law and scored the biggest hit of the evening with a character song in the second act. Her acting, accentuated by makeup and costume, throughout the play was the cause of hearty laughter and applause. In a longer part, Paul A. Stanhope, another genuine purveyor of character comedy, scored an equal success. He essayed the role of Judge Geoghegan. Jean Kirby made a fine appearance as Dottie Dimple, in a couple of model gowns, one a diaphanous, and her acting was distinctly enjoyable. In an eccentric character part, that of Pop Dooley, Al H. Hallett was also responsible for much laughter. The Russian duke and German dancer, comic opera types, were played by Norbert Cills and Myrtle Vane in a way that added to the general merriment of several important situations in the play. Antoinette Crawford, as Silvia Rosebud; Charles Eichman, as Worthington Best, Sr.; and Edwin Carlie, as Mother Mabel, were at home in their roles. Miss Ruth Winter, one of the local girls, was noticeably attractive and clever in the role of a housemaid.

The comedy was well received by a fair sized audience.

ACHES AND PAINS

Don't neglect a pain anywhere, but find out what causes it and conquer the cause. A pain in the kidney region may put you on your back tomorrow. Don't blame the weather for swollen feet, it may be an advance warning of Bright's disease. A pain in the stomach may be the first symptom of appendicitis. A creel in a joint may be the forerunner of rheumatism. Chronic headaches more than likely warn you of serious stomach trouble. Beware of substitutes. The only pure imported Haarlem Oil Capsules are the GOLD MEDAL.—Advertisement.

SPRY NOT ASKED TO GO ON STUMP

The curiosity of friends of Governor William Spry who had been puzzled as to why the chief executive had not taken a more active part in the Republican campaign was appeased yesterday when the governor informed them that he had not been invited.

Governor Spry was invited to preside at the Republican ratification meeting held at the Salt Lake theatre about the middle of September, and since that time he has not appeared in any of the campaign activities.

Governor Spry has been considered by all parties to be one of the best campaigners in Utah, and his friends resent the fact that he was not invited to take the stump by the Republican state committee.

The fact that he had not appeared on the platform in behalf of the Republican ticket caused considerable wonder among his many friends. A few of them were familiar with the situation and resented the neglect on the part of the Republican leaders, and those who were not familiar with the governor. When asked as to the true status of things last night, the governor said:

I have been invited by the Republican leaders to speak just twice during the campaign—at the Republican ratification meeting and at Tooele about two weeks ago. I was asked to go to Tooele with Mrs. Janetta A. Hyde two weeks ago tonight to address a Republican women's meeting. I was compelled to decline the offer because I was sitting with the board of pardons at the state prison, and the session did not end until late at night.

A few days afterward I went to the Mexican border to visit the Utah troops, and only returned a few days ago. Other than those two times there has been no invitation from the Republican leaders to speak during the campaign.

Some of my friends have been indignant with me under the impression that I was lying down on the party, and I would be glad to have them know the true situation.

A copy of the following changes was served on D. N. Straup and the other members of the supreme court by special delivery last Saturday:

James S. Cantwell of Ogden charges the Utah state bar grievance committee as being lax in its duty and an unnecessary committee in that it does not serve the purpose for which it was formed, and that the supreme court and its members work hand in hand with the committee and with the Utah State Bar association and its members to defeat the statutes of the state of Utah in the interests of attorneys and counselors at law who are charged with unprofessional conduct in disbarment actions.

The proof, Cantwell claims, is found in part by statements of Frank K. Nebeker, the chairman of the state bar grievance committee, in a newspaper article October 20, 1916, wherein he, Nebeker, says the committee to date has taken no cognizance in such cases; also by the deliberations of the committee and supreme court, and its members of the Utah State

North Ogden, Nov. 4.—"Aunt" Sarah Ann Berrett, widow of the late Robert C. Berrett, now in her eighty-second year and a very highly respected member of the community, is very seriously ill at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Harriet Spackman, with pneumonia and other complications incident to her age.

Her residence in North Ogden covers a period of over half a century and her life during that time has been filled with deeds of kindness for humanity, and she has never been happier than when she was, as has been said of her Master, "going about doing good."

A farewell reception for Joseph A. Shaw, who has been called to the southern mission to leave November 22, is being planned for Friday evening, November 19, in the amusement hall.

A handsome girl, born October 31, has been added to the ideal little family of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Berrett. All are doing well.

Franklin L. Blodgett has been confined to his home on Washington avenue quite sick under a breakdown with a number of complications.

PIONEER OF 1847

Salt Lake, Nov. 6.—John H. Dewey, pioneer of 1847, died yesterday morning in this city after an illness of several years. Mr. Dewey was born in Westfield, Mass., in the year 1832, son of Ashbel and Harriet Adams Dewey, and would have been 85 years of age in February next.

He left his Westfield home when he was 14 years of age with his father and two brothers, Albert and Frank Dewey, and arrived in Salt Lake in September, 1847, two months after the original pioneers arrived.

He is survived by his widow, Annie Dewey, and seven children, one son and six daughters, all of whom reside here, with the exception of a daughter now living in Nevada.

J. H. Dewey, a son, is chief clerk in the general freight office of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad.

Mr. Dewey followed the mining business for the past 30 years, being interested in the Alta and Bingham districts.

Funeral services will be held at the Dewey residence, 241 East Fourth South street, at 1 p. m., Wednesday.
